Best Selling Author and Korn Ferry's Global Leader of CEO and Executive Development Offers Rich Advice on 'Growing the Whole Person to Grow the Whole Leader'

LOS ANGELES--(BUSINESS WIRE)--Nov. 8, 2017-- The completely revised edition of Leadership from the Inside Out: Becoming a Leader for Life, by Kevin Cashman, best-selling author and Korn Ferry (NYSE:KFY) Global Leader of CEO and Executive Development, has just been released.

The third edition of the classic book, which has new chapters, new research and new case studies, offers exercises and practices to help leaders develop mastery areas that foster heightened awareness, courage, character, authenticity and purpose.

Based on Cashman's continuing work with Korn Ferry in developing leaders around the world, Leadership from the Inside Out was first introduced 20 years ago. The book literally turned leadership development inside out, as his core premise, grow the whole person to grow the whole leader, was a radical departure from traditional leadership books—it was one of the first to connect personal development with leadership transformation. Since then, it has been adopted as a core text in more than 150 academic and corporate universities, translated into multiple languages, and named one of the top bestselling business books of the decade by 800-CEO-READ.

This new, 20th anniversary edition has been completely revamped to include new research in leadership, neuroscience and psychology, as well as insights from Cashman's interviews with CEOs and work with thousands of other leaders dealing with the new challenges of leading in the 21st century. The book serves as an integrated leadership development experience that helps leaders understand how to harness their authentic, purpose-driven influence and elevate their impact as individuals, in teams, in organizations and in the world.

Leadership from the Inside Out: Becoming a Leader for Life is now available online and in bookstores. Visit www.cashmanleadership.com for more details.
